Hapgood, Norman. George Washington. .1901..... 92 W272ha

"Deals mainly with the life of Washington down to his election as President, the years subsequent to 1789 being but briefly surveyed. In general plan and method of treatment the work suggests the 'true biographies'...There is the same copious quotation from letters and journals, the same interesting emphasis upon details, and the same distinctly personal impression as in the well-known biographies by Ford, Curtis, and Fisher...The result is a presentation of Washington on his human side which, while at times somewhat painful to hero-worshippers, happily avoids the belittling manner into which this style of biography easily falls." Nation, 1902.

Mr. Hare gives interesting details of their childhood in France and England and of their marriages. Lady Canning's married life was spent in India during the eventful period of the mutiny, her journal being full of the thrilling scenes there enacted...Lady Waterford spent her long widowhood among her husband's tenants in Ireland. The edition from which this is condensed is chiefly a series of letters and private journals and is (1900) the chief authority on the subject. For 20 years Wilberforce was the leader in and out of Parliament in the movement for the abolition of the slave-trade, and no one was more instrumental in bringing it about.

"One most obvious characteristic of Wilberforce was [his] singular personal attractiveness...His transparent kindliness and simplicity made him, like Fox, lovable even to his antagonists...Though some injudicious admirers tried to raise his merits by depreciating the claims of his allies and predecessors in the anti-slavery movement, it may safely be said that there are few heroes of philanthropy whose careers will better stand an impartial investigation." Dictionary of national biography.

Since then he has made conquest after conquest...Not only in his own Switzerland, but in the Himalayas, in New Zealand, and in the Andes...Will be attractive to many as the first attempt of any guide to give an account of himself and his doings in print, and as containing a record of mountain-adventure that few climbers...could match." Academy, 1900.
